Thank you for your interest in the North Carolina State Bar's Fee Dispute Resolution Program. Please understand that this program only reviews fee disputes and takes no position on any other issues that may exist between attorneys and clients. Enclosed please find the petition for resolution of disputed fee, which should be used by anyone who has a fee dispute with a lawyer and wants the dispute reviewed by the State Bar. A brochure is also included with the form. Please read all of the enclosed before completing the fee dispute petition.

The Fee Dispute Resolution Program deals only with issues involving the legal services that were provided and the fees charged for those services. The authority this program has is somewhat limited in nature. The rules that the program operates by do not give us the authority to forgive legal fees that may be owed a law firm or to require the payment of refunds. Further, we do not have authority over legal fees that have been awarded by the court or an administrative agency. Our position is one of a mediator in that we try to assist the parties to resolve a fee dispute to the satisfaction of the parties involved. In most cases, the mediation will be conducted over the telephone. This process will vary in areas that have local fee dispute committees whereby an in person mediation may be held.

Not all fee disputes justify an attempt at mediation. If the legal fees appear to have been earned and do not appear to be clearly excessive for the legal services provided, the matter will be referred to the Chair of the Fee Dispute Resolution Program for review and possible dismissal. In cases where the legal fees appear to be excessive for the legal services provided or if the fees appear to have been earned but are not paid, an attempt at mediation will be made.
