What We Do

The North Carolina State Bar is the government agency that regulates the legal profession for the protection of the public. The State Bar currently regulates over 29,000 active North Carolina lawyers. Although the State Bar is responsible for the administration of numerous programs for the improvement of the legal profession, the key regulatory responsibilities of the State Bar are the promulgation of the Rules of Professional Conduct and the investigation and prosecution of lawyers who violate the State Bar’s code of ethics.

Protect the Public

The State Bar protects the public by issuing professional discipline to lawyers. Allegations of lawyer misconduct are investigated by the State Bar’s professional staff and reviewed by the Grievance Committee of the State Bar Council. Cases that are not resolved at the Grievance Committee level are tried before the Disciplinary Hearing Commission, an independent administrative tribunal composed of lawyers and nonlawyers.

Advise Lawyers on Ethical Questions

The State Bar provides advice to lawyers who are faced with ethical questions through its Ethics Committee and its professional staff. The committee regularly reviews and recommends changes to the North Carolina Rules of Professional Conduct, the ethical code to which North Carolina lawyers must conform their conduct and pursuant to which a lawyer may receive professional discipline.

Investigate Unauthorized Practice of Law

The State Bar, through its Authorized Practice Committee and professional staff, investigates complaints and obtains injunctions to prevent violations of the statutes prohibiting the unauthorized practice of law. These cases often involve nonlawyers who mislead the public about their ability to provide legal services and who take money from members of the public without providing the offered service.

State Bar Hosted Opioid Summit

The North Carolina State Bar Opioid Summit was held on October 4, 2019, at the State Bar. Attendees heard from individuals in recovery, impacted family members, leading experts, and practicing lawyers about the opioid epidemic in North Carolina and how it impacts the legal profession. Chief Justice Cheri L. Beasley and then State Bar President Gray Wilson gave introductory remarks, followed by a keynote address from North Carolina Attorney General Josh Stein.

The morning agenda included presentations on the state’s response to the epidemic (Anna Stein, NCDHHS), the science of opioid use (Dr. Blake Fagan), a view from the bench (Judge J.H. Corpening), and the prosecutor’s perspective (District Attorney Ben David).

During lunch, attendees were inspired by a panel of individuals, most in long-term recovery from opioid misuse, who serve their communities in many ways, including efforts at harm reduction. The afternoon included a heartbreaking account from Charlotte Senior Deputy City Attorney Hope Root, who spoke candidly about her son’s struggle with opioid use.

The day concluded with a panel of practicing lawyers discussing representation of clients who suffer from opioid use disorder, which was moderated by Smithfield Lawyer Marci Armstrong and State Bar Ethics Counsel Brian Oten.

Additional Transparency

As part of the State Bar’s efforts to increase transparency, we have continued the live streaming of the quarterly meetings of the State Bar Council on Facebook.

Additionally, the State Bar began production of a podcast—BarTalk. The premiere episode, which gives an overview of the January 2020 meeting of the council, is available at bit.ly/32vzWTa.

Increased Legal Education Opportunities

This fall the Supreme Court approved amendments to the rules governing the Continuing Legal Education (CLE) program to eliminate the six hour on demand cap on CLE courses. Education is the primary purpose of CLE, and lawyers should have more opportunities to satisfy their requirements with the removal of the cap.

IOLTA Income Increased over 70%

Participant income received by IOLTA in 2019 exceeded $5.1 million, an increase of 70% over 2018, and the program’s highest annual participant income to date. With improved funds available, IOLTA increased regular grantmaking by 75%, and also made a significant contribution to the board-established grantmaking reserve fund to plan for future economic downturns when income dips.
